VAIL — Imagine being able to get in the gates for two hours, four times a week all season long at the Golden Peak Race Arena at Vail Mountain under the watchful eye of a former World Cup and Olympic coach.

That is just what Ski & Snowboard Club Vail is going to be offering through its Get in the Gates Race Program presented by Alpine Bank, Ski & Snowboard Club Vail head coach Erik Steinberg and other professional Ski & Snowboard Club Vail coaches.

HONE YOUR SKILLS

The program provides an opportunity for aspiring racers ages 8 through adults and masters of all abilities to hone their skills in slalom and giant slalom. Training will be provided every Wednesday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday from 1:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. from Nov. 29 to March 15 (excluding Dec. 24 and 31).

“Get in the Gates is a wonderful throwback to the early days of Vail when patrollers, instructors, kids and locals of all stripes would bang gates on Pepi’s Face,” Steinberg said. “What a great opportunity to get together with your friends and enjoy ski racing.”

ADDITIONAL BENEFITS

As a member of this program, an athlete is also eligible for Ski & Snowboard Club Vail member pricing on camps, equipment, fitness center memberships and tuning services along with Ski & Snowboard Club Vail newsletters and special events.

“With the help of Alpine Bank, the introductory season-long price of $895 (for 60 training sessions) and SSCV Simple Scholarships of up to $500 for anyone under 21, being in a ski racing program has never been easier,” said Aldo Radamus, SSCV executive director.

Youth racers may compete for free in the Steadman Clinic Vail Cup Series. Any current Ski & Snowboard Club Vail participant may also join these Get in the Gates sessions at no additional charge.

‘MORE ACCESSIBLE’

“Alpine Bank is proud to support the Get in the Gates program,” said Mike Brown, regional president at
